The Australian Institute of Professional Intelligence Officers (AIPIO) provides a focal point for Australia's intelligence community and related fields.

The Intelligence 2007 Conference brings together intelligence professionals from around the region and the world and will build on the success of previous conferences and joint activities planned for 2007 with the theme of "The new umbrella of intelligence" and what this now covers.

Intelligence 2007 will challenge us to explore what is now covered by the Umbrella of Intelligence.

Following on from the theme of 2006 on the future directions and changes being experienced in the Intelligence Community this conference will now focus on what is now considered to be under the umbrella and provide a forum for the reanalysis of trends and implications as business and government agencies of all descriptions are now embracing intelligence.

With input from you, we've planned for an inclusive multi-streamed series of sessions and workshops designed to deliver an excellent range of experiences.

Intelligence 2007 is the venue to establish new contacts, network with your peers and share insights into today's fresh topics, trends and innovations in Intelligence.

In addition to the program of expert speakers, the conference organisers are calling for papers from members of the intelligence profession. All details are available from www.aipio.asn.au

Intelligence 2007 will also include an extensive interactive trade exhibition and professional demonstrations. Please mark these dates in your diary now and book early. Watch www.aipio.asn.au for further update
